There are automated releases that are done for all our projects using Continuous Deployment, currently Gitlab CI/CD, for the development or the staging environments.

The production release are done manually by the devops engineering team. Before they can proceed with a production release, there are some steps to be done by the development team also. The common steps for all our projects are described in: Development SOP

The more specific steps here:

- AutoOrdering

- Data Integration Service